THE JONES FAMILY: OR,
AN ESTIMATE OF MONEY.

It is sheer nonsense to contend that money does nothing towards raising a man's respectability in the world. Enough of this theory was verified in the Jones family. Jacob Jones was a poor, thriftless man, with a large family who were put to great straits to get along decently, and everybody knew it; yet nobody knew anything against them but their poverty. He was a sensible man, well versed in politics, and could make as handsome a speech as Squire Driver, in any town meeting or Freehold, but then it was only 'Jake Jones, the man who wan't worth a cent in the world.' He might have held important offices in the militia, or been one of the selectmen, but he was so poor he was entirely overlooked.

Besides, this poverty was a great disadvantage to the family. The girls was always held below par, in consequence of their being brought up in an obscure way—and Mrs. Jones, their mother, never attained to any office in the sewing circle or any charitable fair, simply because she could not mingle with the aristocracy.—Yet she was acknowledged to be a sensible woman, and every one pitied her because she was so poor.

The Jones girls never had a fair position in society, or they would have appeared as well as many others. They were marked as 'slab sided, gawky girls,' with whom mothers evidently preferred their daughters should have but little intercourse and they more especially feared lest their sons should be attracted by their faces, for they were pretty, notwithstanding their poverty—and Mrs. Driver herself declared 'if they only had money they would appear as well as any ladies in town,' but as it was they were only known as 'Jake Jones's daughters, who lived in the small red house under the hill.'

But Mrs Jones was descended from an English stock, She used to say, if she only had money to travel, she had no doubt but she could find out her pedigree; but this all went for 'smart talk,' until one day the public journal announced that 'the heirs of Lucretia Selbon, if living, might hear of something to their advantage, by calling to —— street, No. 9'—Mrs Jones was her only child. It was her without mistake.

It would have been a curious chapter to have noted down the sayings of their old acquaintances when it was noised abroad that the Joneses had such a fortune. Mrs Smith said 'she always thought there was something above the commonality in Mrs Jones, for her part she had always been social with her, and treated her lady like.' 'But mother,' said Sophia, you did warn me against associating with her daughters. You know you said they were awkward, uncouth girls.' 'But my dear, it is not so, they are in reality very genteel, accomplished young ladies, and I have no objection at all to your visiting them, especially, as such a good fortune has happen'd to them.'

Jacob Jones soon set up a princely style of living. He built an elegant house, kept his carriage, hired servants, received a commission from the governor as justice of the peace the next year was first selectmen of the town, and Dr. Bond eloquently urged his claims as Representative to the General Court, affirming with great emphasis that 'he knew no man in town better calculated to represent its interests than Squire Jones.' This was the man who hotted out of meeting rather than hear 'old Jake Jones talk,' a little more than a year ago!

And now the society of the Misses Jones was courted. 'Thomas, Richard, Henry, the mother used to say, if you are going to a concert or to a lecture, why don't you invite Cary or Sophia Jones to go with you? They are sweet pretty girls, and you would do well if you could push your way there. The Squire, they say is worth full two hundred thousand, and that divided makes every child independent.'

They were no longer the slab sided sided greenies, but the tall, graceful, handsome girls, who were dressed beautifully, and conversed as sensibly. Didn't the Joneses laugh behind the door as they contrasted the present with the past! Then there was Micajah Jones, who used to play the big fiddle in the church, known only in those days as 'Cage the fiddler,' but since he had procured a handsome house organ, and had contributed a large sum for one in the church, he had assumed the cognomen of 'Mr Jones, our exquisite performer and organist—son of Squire Jones, the gentleman who received such a large property from England.'—The girls were all ready to set in the choir now without crying—the organist was a noble hearted fellow, and wasn't it a treat to borrow his quizzing glass, to look at the strangers who happened to enter the church?

By and by there was a new event talked about, for the affairs of Jones was now the all engrossing topic. Sophia was thought to be engaged to Mr Tymphony, the village storekeeper. Nobody was certain of the fact. Yet every one knew that it must come out an engagement—and it was thought his 'variety store' was enlarged, with that view, the Squire's purse, when suddenly Mr Pinker from the South, a wealthy cotton planter, carried her away at ten days' notice, where slaves come at her beck and call, to do as she bids.

Another was soon after married to a speculator who lived like a nabob—gave large entertainments, bought a summer residence in Freehold, and made it a perfect Paradise. Every one of the daughters married well, and never wanted for the warmest friends and admirers.

The Squire and his lady now occupy the broad aisle of the Episcopal Church, and the bishop and rector always consult with him respecting church matters: He is the father of the town, and marries more couples than the ministers, because the people are pleased to have the knot tied in such elegant drawing rooms—and Mrs Jones invariably orders a glass of wine and a basket of cake at the ceremony.

Cloyes, the barber, lives rent free in the small red house they occupied in the days of their poverty.

The Squire remembers he used to shave him for nothing when his pockets were empty, and he follows the golden rule.

THOUGHTS ON THE NEW YEAR.

The closing year hath left us,
Its potent spells are fled,
And all the joys it gave us,
Are numbered with the dead—
Wisely hath God dealt with us,
In mercy or in wrath,
Or in blending both together,
Made strait our onward path.

Look, oh! my soul within thee,
And search thyself full well,
Nor let no cherished idol,
Before His presence dwell.
Is life a toilsome journey,
A dark and dreary road?
Doth thou anew the way pursue,
That leads direct to God.

Hath sorrow overcome thee,
Are wealth and pleasure flown?
Are friends that once caressed thee,
Estranged, and pass thee by,
Love's glances that have blessed thee,
Cast willingly away?

Then raise thine eyes distressed,
Cast thou off thy cumbrous load,
The pure in heart are blessed,
They surely shall see God.
Has hope thy home deserted,
Are fame and honor gone?
Firmly with faith true hearted,
Bless God and travel on.

Have fame and honor crowned thee,
Are wealth and pleasure thine,
Do hope and joy surround thee?
Bow meekly at this shrine.
Receive each blessing gladly,
With humble, thankful love,
And know that every perfect gift,

BE GENTLE TO THY WIFE.

Be gentle, for you little know
How many trials rise,
Although to thee they may be small,
To her of giant size.

Be gentle, though perchance that lip,
May speak a murmuring tone,
The heart may beat with kindness yet,
And joy to be thine own.

Be gentle, weary hours of pain,
'Tis woman's lot bear,
Then yield her what support thou canst,
And all her sorrows share.

Be gentle, for the noblest hearts,
At times may have some grief,
And even in a petish word,
May seek to find relief.

Be gentle, none are perfect—
Thou'rt dearer far than life!
Then, husband, bear, and still forbear—
Be gentle to thy wife.

☞ A pork ham, cured by a new process without the use of salt, has been exhibited in New York. It was smoked and looked remarkably nice, and the person having it on exhibition, offers to cure in like manner, 1,000 pounds for $2,50.

☞ In Northampton last Saturday, a MAN lost his purse containing two hundred dollars. A poor colored boy found it, and the owner in the fulness of his grateful gizzard, (for it is clear he had no heart) gave the lad the enormous sum of 5 cents.

SPEECH OF Mr. EDWARD EVERETT, OF MASSACHUSETTS,

On the Central American Treaty concluded with Great Britain on the 19th of April, 1850.

WASHINGTON.
In Senate, March 21, 1853.

Mr. EVERETT said; Mr. President, it has not been my intention, as I had the honor to state to the Senate on Thursday last, to engage in the debate which has been conducted with so much ability in this place during the last eight or ten days.

It was quite natural, in fact it was unavoidable, that the senator from Delaware—Mr. Clayton, after returning to the Senate, of which for twenty four years he had been one of the brightest ornaments, should be desirous of availing himself of the first opportunity of vindicating the negotiation of the treaty of the 19th of April, 1850, which was conducted by him under the direction of President Taylor. It was not less a matter of course that the chairman of the Committee on Foreign Relations, Mr. Mason, and that the senator from Illinois, Mr. Douglas, who had taken part in the debates of the last session, should reply to the statements of the honorable senator from Delaware. But for my own part, my humble connexion with the affairs of Central America is much more recent and slight.

Mr. DOUGLAS. The President said that certain provisions must be stricken out before it could be sanctioned by him. . . . The Senator referred to remarks of his, and said that we ought to love England with respect, because she is our mother. It would be hard to tell who our mother was. [Laughter.] We have a great many mothers. We have English, Irish, Scotch, French, Norman, Spanish, and every kind of descent; You cannot tell exactly who our mother was, if we go back to nations to find our mother, All we have found valuable in England we have adopted, and rejected what was injurious; so of the rest of the world. A wise people will avail themselves of wise principles not regarding their origin. He did not speak in terms of unkindness of England, but spoke of her monuments; The point he made was, that we should not shut our eyes to the fact that England is pursuing a policy which has its origin in hostility to us, and to enhance her own interests. And he had to remark to the senator that when he heard him speaking of England pouring in her streams of refreshing intelligence, he thought the broad streams of abolition, treason, and insurrections, had been poured plentifully enough into South Carolina and other slaveholding states of this Union.

NICHOLS' JOURNAL

'Of Health, Water-Cure, and Human Progress. Number First.

By T. L. Nichols, M. D. and Mrs. M. S. Gove Nichols,
Principals of the American Hydropathic Institute.

Nichols' Journal will be published on the 1st of each month, beginning with April, 1853. Each number will be illustrated with valuable Engravings, and will contain the best articles on Health, Medical Reform, Popular Physiology, Education, Science, Art, Literature, Manners and Society, that we can write or procure.

'The object of this paper is to give to the great cause of Human Progress, and especially to the Health Reform, which must be the material basis of all true reformation, an Organ, which shall be, so far as our abilities and ample means can make it,

'The Best Reform Paper in the World!
'The Cheapest *P*aper in the World! !
'*T*he Largest Circulation in the World!'

We have often heard of the 'Water Cure, and have been looking through the paper for the process of cure, but could see nothing of it. Having left the main point out and putting in some things about Woman's Rights, which might as well have been left out. We fear our friend Nichols will not be so popular as he expects.

☞ We have received the first number of the

RAGGED-SCHOOL REPORTER.

Published by the Society of the Iron Man, for the benefit of Industrial Schools!—Terms.—50 cents per annum.
New York,

History of the FIVE POINTS MOVEMENT.'

Of the three papers we think this last by far the best—the design is grand; and confers the highest honor upon the reformers of the Five Points. In that shocking abode of wretchedness, schools, churches and sewing societies are now found. One would think, that nothing short of superhuman power could have ventured into the district, or have faced individuals so polluted with crime. This humane undertaking is the work of the Methodists: may heaven speed them. We should have attended to this work of Christian love earlier, but the only paper we ever received on the subject, dated January last, was mislaid.

Mrs. FITZPATRICK.

We have often heard of this lady who ranks high in society, and is unwearied in acts of charity—we receive intelligence of her daily visits to the suffering poor, but never had the pleasure of her acquaintance till a few days since, when an unfortunate circumstance brought us together.

A man by the name of Martin, removed from Boston to this city, with a wife and three children, and stopped at a shantey across the street in front of our door—where his wife's sister and husband lives. But from what cause no one can tell, he left Washington suddenly, took his two eldest children one nine and the other and all the their money, and returned to Boston, leaving his wife sick, without one cent, and on the eve of being confined. We sent an account of the matters to Mrs. Fitzpatrick who came promptly, and the next day found the unfortunate lady relieved from want: but she grieves incessantly for the absence of her children, and takes no comfort in any shape. They are both nice women, and have been well raised.

Mrs. Fitzpatrick is in the meridian of life, rather below the common height, with a light figure, and a form of exquisite symmetry. Her hair is dark—her face is oval of the middling shade, with pleasing features of the finest model, though somewhat thin. Her eyes are full dark, and brilliant, and bespeaks her what she is, kindness and benevolence itself: Her countenance is tranquil, and denotes a disposition gentle as the falling dew—while her manners are affable and winning, and a modest blush suffuses her cheek.

Mrs. F. was accompanied by her daughter, a beautiful girl of sweet sixteen, and well grown. Miss F. is tall and stately, with a straight rounding figure of the de Medicis form, and a light graceful step. Her face is round, full and fair as alabaster—with the bloom of the rose on her cheek. Her brilliant azure eye that seems to melt with human kindness—her forehead deep, smooth, and expansive, denotes intelligence and strong mental powers—her light modest brow, the most commanding feature of her lovely face, bespeaks innocence and a sweetness of temper quite imposing. Her countenance is open, frank and erudite, and has a smiling radiance unmatched in all the blandishments of female elegance. May her virtues be crowned with lasting happiness.

Mrs. Fitzpatrick was likewise accompanied by a sister, the exact counterpart of herself. The same in height, size and features, with a countenance, manners and every endowment near about the same.

We never saw Mr. Fitzpatrick, to our knowledge—he is a clerk in the United States Senate.

Mrs. KESSLER.

Mrs. K. lives in East Capitol street, in the large corner house opposite Mrs. Bassetts—where she keeps an Academy or School for young ladies. She is in the prime of life, below the common stature in height, with a de Medicis figure, and in air, countenance, conversation, and manners, has all the charms of a French lady. Her face is round and fair, with two sweet blue eyes peeping through a shower of the most beautiful golden ringlets in creation—she is all gentleness, grace and lady like in her deportment, whether she sits or stands.

All the English branches. French, and music are taught in her Seminary, and she is endeavoring to procure a Latin teacher. But the strangest part of the story is yet to come. Mrs K's. eldest daughter, only fifteen. (perhaps sixteen, we forget which] is her music teacher while she is at the same time studying the French language. She is a well grown girl of the de Medicis shape, with an oval full face of the medium shade. Her fine fawn eye bright and steady as the sun, bespeaks uncommon intellect for her years, her hair is black. But of all females she has the most tranquil countenance—we could not detect a smile—she played us a few tunes well, at the request of her mother, but was very impatient to go into the reciting room, She will be a great woman if she lives,

☞ Hon. John J, Crittenden, late Attorney General of the United States, and his bride, Mrs, Ashley. Some writer in the Georgetown Ky. Herald, speaks of them as follows—

'When till now, did any man have three such wives? or any woman three such husbands! We know little of the first match in either case, but the next two were superb in the last degree, in both instances. Always happy—never more so than in meeting with each other. Never upon earth, was the secret of marriage better illustrated than in this instance; it consists in one word—suitableness.'

Beat this who can—but the half is not said. But no one will ever be able to say as much.

PROSPECTUS FOR "THE GLOB
THE CONGRESSIONAL NEWSPAPER.

THE APPROACH OF CONGRESS calls for the renewal of my proposals and preparations to spread the debates before the public. The success which has hitherto attended this undertaking it is hoped will continue, and enable me to perpetuate the full history of the proceedings and discussions of the body on which the destiny of the Republic depends.

The adoption of Congress has given the GLOBE an official character as the reporter of all that is said and done in the body. This sanction has been voted at every successive session for many years, and by members of all parties. The press, too, of all parties, has borne testimony to the fidelity with which the duty thus confided has been performed.

The great celerity with which the latter writers for the distant press circulate through the telegraph their hurried accounts and views of the debates of Congress, renders more important than ever the full and exact official reports of the CONGRESSIONAL GLOBE. The hasty, and in many instances ex parte, relations by telegraph of what occurs in Congress supersede, for the most part, the exact reports taken down by reporters, and which formerly, in a shape more or less abbreviated, went the rounds of the press. Now the telegraph accounts, with all their imperfections and variety of colorings, take the run of the country, and no press but the official of Congress ever publishes the full debate with the proceedings of both Houses unmutilated. Indeed, no newspaper can give them, and have room for advertisements and the miscellaneous matter essential to their existence. While therefore, the telegraph administers to the eager appetite of the public for Congress news, and meets the necessities of the political press, by furnishing a rapidly-written epitome suited to the taste of its patrons, perfect information of what passes in Congress is greatly diminished. The circulation of the official reports has been, to some extent, cut off by the crude and diversified accounts which, flying along the electric wires, satisfies curiosity, and it is almost in vain that truth puts on his boots to follow. Still there are a great many men of leisure and thought who like to see what is actually said and done in Congress, and to judge for themselves, rather than to receive impressions altogether from galvanic batteries. There are others, too, who, for the sake of the future, willingly patronize a work which preserves a full record of the doings of the great moving and controlling power of the Republic.

3,500 royal quarto pages of brevier and nonpareil type, making 4 volumes of near 900 pages each. The reports for the last long session made 3,896 royal quarto pages, and were bound in 4 volumes, averaging 974 royal quarto pages each.

I will publish in the APPENDIX for the next session all speeches may be passed during the session, which has not been done heretofore. Although this will increase in some degree the expense of the publication, the subscription price will be the same that it has been for several years past.

The CONGRESSIONAL GLOBE will be published during the session on extra super fine double royal sheet. It will contain the debates as taken down by the reporters, and as altered by the speakers, whenever they make any alterations; the latest news of the day, and miscellaneous matter. The main object for publishing the daily paper is to enable Members to see their remarks in it, and alter them if they shall think proper before they are publised in the CONGRESSIONAL GLOBE and APPENDIX.

The CONGRESSIONAL GLOBE is made up of the daily proceedings of the two Houses of Congress, and printed on a double royal paper, with small type, (brevier and nonpareil,) in quarto form, each number containing sixteen royal quarto pages. The speeches of the Members, in this first form, are sometimes condensed—the full report of the prepared speeches being reserved for the APPENDIX. All resolutions, motions, and other proceedings, are given in the form of the Journals, with the yeas and nays on every important question.

The APPENDIX is made up of the President's Annual Message, the reports of the principal officers of the Government that accompany it, and all speeches of Members of Congress, written out, or revised themselves. It is printed in the same form as the CONGRESSIONAL GLOBE, and usually makes about the same number of pages during a session.

During the first month or six weeks of a session there is usually more business done than will make two numbers a week—one of the CONGRESSIONAL GLOBE and one of the APPENDIX; but during the remainder of a session there is usually sufficient matter for two or three numbers of each every week. The next session will be unusually interesting; therefore I calculate that the CONGRESSIONAL GLOBE and APPENDIX together will make at least 3,500 large quarto pages, printed in small type—brevier and nonpareil. Complete Indexes to both will be furnished at the end of a session.

I will endeavor to print a sufficient number of surplus copies to supply all that may be miscarried, or lost in the mails; but subscribers should be very particular to file their papers carefully, for fear that I should not be able to supply all the lost numbers.

If subscribers shall not be satisfied with the work, the money paid by them for it will be refunded to them whenever they return the numbers which may have been received by them. I will give subscribers the subscription price for any of the previous volumes of the CONGRESSIONAL GLOBE or the APPENDIX, except for the last session, and will thank any person who will let me have them.

I have a few copies of the back volumes of the CONGRESSIONAL GLOBE and APPENDIX for sale at $5 a volume bound, which it is probable will be disposed of soon; and when they are, they will then, no doubt, command at least $10 a volume, as they cannot be reprinted for less than that sum. There are 25 back volumes.

PROSPECTUS FOR 1853
THE SATURDAY EVENING POST.
THE LEADING LITERARY WEEKLY

Over Thirty-one years have elapsed since the Saturday Evening Post began its weekly round of blended instruction and amusement; and never, in all that period, was its success so marked as at the present moment. Possessing undeniably the largest circulation, by many thousands, of any paper of its class in the Union, its subscribers have the best of reasons for believing that it stands upon a permanent basis, and that they will receive the full value of every dollar intrusted to its publishers. In announcing some of our preparations for the coming year, we may begin by stating our continued connection with Mrs. Southworth, a writer who, in vigor and fertility of genius, is not surpassed by any, male or female, in the Union. Mrs. Caroline Lee Hentz, a lady whom it would be almost superfluous to praise, in view of the general popularity of such tales as 'The Mob Cap,' 'Eoline,' 'Linda,' 'Rena,' etc also is enrolled among our contributors.

We shall shortly begin the publication of a story entitled by Emerson Bennett, author of 'Vonta Flower,' 'Bandits of the Oaiguw. And at the opening of the ensuing year a design commencing the publication of the following Novelet,

CLARA MORELAND

MISS THUSA'S SPINNING-WHEEL,

By Mrs. Lee Hentz, of Flor f Eoline,' Linda,' 'Rena,' etc This novelet we design for a story entitled,

A STRAY PATCH FROM AUNT HANNAH'S QUILT.

by Mrs. Frances D. Gage, of Ohio, widely known as the author of some admirably written and very effective household poems, sketches, etc. After this we expect to be able to commence

THE LOST HEIRESS;
A STORY OF HOWLET HALL.

By Mrs. E. D. E. N. Southworth, author of 'The Curse of Clifton,' 'Virginia and Magdalene,' 'Shannondale,' the Deserted Wife.

In addition to these and other Original tales, involving a large expenditure of money we shall lay before our readers as heretofore choice tales, sketches, essays, narratives, etc. from the English magazines, such as have given the Post a name for the excellence of its selections,

Engravings—In the way of engravings we present at least two weekly, one of an instructive and the other of a humorous character,

☞ Of course we shall maintain for the Post the character it has acquired of being a strictly moral paper, not ridiculously squeamish and straight laced, but really and truly moral; such as may be taken into the family circle without fear. Advertisements of an improper character shall be, as heretofore, rigorously excluded.

CHEAP POSTAGE.

The postage on the Post to any part of the United States, when paid quarterly in advance, is now only 26 cents a year. And we trust that the public generally will show their appreciation of this commendable reduction of postage, by largely increasing the number of papers taken at the various offices—that thus there may be no falling off in the revenue of the Post office department. This will insure a continuance of the present reduced rates.

TERMS.

The terms of the Post are Two Dollars if paid in advance, 3,00, if not paid in advance. For five dollars in advance, one copy will be sent three years. We continue the following low terms for Clubs—to be sent, in the city, to one address, and, in the country, to one Post Office:

TOWNSEND' SARSPARILLA

Great extraordinary Medicine in the world six times cheaper, pleasanter, and warranted superior to any sold. It cured diseases, without vomiting, purging, sickening, or debilitating the patient.

The great beauty and superiority of this Sasaparilla over all other remedies is, while it eradicates disease, it invigorates the body.

IT HAS PERFORMED MORE THAN 15,000 CURES
THIS YEAR

1,000 cures of Rheumatism.
1,000 cures of Dyspepsia.
2,500 cures of general debility and want of Nervous energy.
30,000 Female Complaints, and over 7,000 cures of Diseases of the blood viz:

Ulcers, scrofula erysipelas salt rheum pimples on the face &c, together with numerous cases of consumption liver complaints spine affections, &c. This, we are aware, must appear incredible, but we have letters from physicians and our agents from all parts of the United States informing us of extraordinary cures. R Van, Buskirk Esq, one of the most respectable druggists in Newark, New Jersey, informs us that he can refer to more than one hundred and fifty cases in that place alone. There are thousands of cases in the city of New York which we will refer to with pleasure, and to men of character well known.

Opinions of Physicians.

Dr. Townsend is almost daily receiving orders from physicians in different parts of the Union.

This is to certify that we the undersigned physicians of the city of Albany have in numerous cases prescribed Dr Townsend's Sarsaparilla and believe it be one of the most valuable preparations Sarsaparilla in the Market

Albany, April 1 1845.

The following is from one of the most respectable physicians on Long Island,

Greenport July 19, 1846.

Dr. Townsend:—Dear Sir—it is with a feeling that I have recently witnessed in my P R cases the most beneficial results from your extract of Sarsaparilla. Being engaged in the practice of medicine, I have prescribed it in several cases and never without benefit. In the removal of diseases arising from a deranged state of the digestive organs, jaundice &c, it far exceeds anything of the kind ever offered to the public. You will please send me two dozen &c,

Respectfully yours,

United States Officer.

Capt. G W McLean, member of the Legislature, and late of the U. S. Navy, has kindly sent us the following certificate. It tells its own story.

Rahway Jan. 25 1847.

A year since I was taken with the influenza and my whole system left in a debilitated state. I was induced to try Dr. Townsend's Sarsaparilla.

After taking two or three bottles, I was very much relieved, and attributed it entirely to the said Sarsaparilla. I have continued taking it, and improve every day I believe it saved my life, and would not be without it under any consideration.

G. W. McLEAN.

Scrofula Cured.

This certificate conclusively proves that the Sarsaparilla has perfect control over the most obstinate diseases of the blood. Three cures cured in one house is unprecedented.

PROSPECTUS FOR "THE GLOB

THE CONGRESSIONAL NEWSPAPER.

THE APPROACH OF CONGRESS calls for the renewal of my proposals and preparations to spread its debates before the public. The success which has hitherto attended this undertaking it is hoped will continue, and enable me to perpetuate the full history of the proceedings and discussions of the body on which the destiny of the Republic depends.

The adoption of Congress has given the GLOBE an official character as the reporter of all that is said and done in the body. This sanction has been voted at every successive session for many years, and by members of all parties. The press, too, of all parties, has borne testimony to the fidelity with which the duty thus confided has been performed.

The great celerity with which the letter writers for the distant press circulate through the telegraph their hurried accounts and views of the debates of Congress, renders more important than ever the full and exact official reports of the CONGRESSIONAL GLOBE. The hasty, and in many instances ex parte, relations by telegraph of what occurs in Congress supersede, for the most part, the exact reports taken down by reporters, and which formerly, in a shape more or less abbreviated, went the rounds of the press. Now the telegraph accounts, with all their imperfections and variety of colorings, take the run of the country, and no press but the official of Congress ever publishes the full debate with the proceedings of both Houses unmutilated. Indeed, no newspaper can give them, and have room for advertisements and the miscellaneous matter essential to their existence. While therefore, the telegraph administers to the eager appetite of the public for Congress news, and meets the necessities of the political press, by furnishing a rapidly-written epitome suited to the taste of its patrons, perfect information of what passes in Congress is greatly diminished. The circulation of the official reports has been, to some extent, cut off by the crude and diversified accounts which, flying along the electric wires, satisfies curiosity, and it is almost in vain that truth puts on his boots to follow. Still there are a great many men of leisure and thought who like to see what is actually said and done in Congress, and to judge for themselves, rather than to receive impressions altogether from galvanic batteries. There are others, too, who, for the sake of the future, willingly patronize a work which preserves a full record of the doings of the great moving and controlling power of the Republic.

3,500 royal quarto pages of brevier and nonpareil type, making 4 volumes of near 900 pages each. The reports for the last long session made 3,896 royal quarto pages, and wembound in 4 volumes, averaging 974 royal quarto pages each.

I won nublish in the APPENDIX for the next session all olawske may else passed during the session, which has not peddone heretofore. Although this will increase in intimate all degree the expense of the publication, the subscription price will be the same that it has been for fivewthrars past.

The TRI-WEEKLY GLOBE will be published during the session on a good superfine double royal sheet. It will contain the debates as taken down by the reporters, and as altered by the speakers, whenever they make any alterations; the latest news of the day, and miscellaneous matter. The main object for publishing the daily paper is to enable Members to see their remarks in it, and alter them if they shall think proper before they are published in the CONGRESSIONAL GLOBE and APPENDIX.

The CONGRESSIONAL GLOBE is made up of the daily proceedings of the two Houses of Congress, and printed on a double royal paper, with small type, (brevier and nonpareil,) in quarto form, each number containing sixteen royal quarto pages. The speeches of the Members, in this first form, are sometimes condensed--the full report of the prepared speeches being reserved for the APPENDIX. All resolutions, motions, and other proceedings, are given in the form of the Journals, with the yeas and nays on every important question.

The APPENDIX is made up of the President's Annual Message, the reports of the principal officers of the Government that accompany it, and all speeches of Members of Congress, written out or revised themselves. It is printed in the same form as the CONGRESSIONAL GLOBE, and usually makes about the same number of pages during a session.

During the first month or six weeks of a session there is rarely more business done than will make two numbers a week—one of the CONGRESSIONAL GLOBE and one of the APPENDIX; but during the remainder of a session there is usually sufficient matter for two or three numbers of each every week. The next session will be unusually interesting; therefore I calculate that the CONGRESSIONAL GLOBE and APPENDIX together will make at least 3,500 large quarto pages, printed in small type—brevier and nonpareil. Complete Indexes to both will be furnished at the end of a session.

I will endeavor to print a sufficient number of surplus copies to supply all that may be miscarried, or lost in the mails; but subscribers should be very particular to file their papers carefully, for fear that I should not be able to supply all the lost numbers.

If subscribers shall not be satisfied with the work, the money paid by them for it will be refunded to them whenever they return the numbers which may have been received by them. I will give subscribers the subscription price for any of the previous volumes of the CONGRESSIONAL GLOBE or the APPENDIX, except for the last session, and will thank any person who will let me have them.

I have a few copies of the back volumes of the CONGRESSIONAL GLOBE and APPENDIX for sale at $5 a volume bound, which it is probable will be disposed of soon; and when they are, they will then, no doubt, command at least $10 a volume, as they cannot be reprinted for less than that sum. There are 25 back volumes.

TERMS.

For one copy of the DAILY GLOBE during the session - - - - - - - - - $5 00
For one copy of the CONGRESSIONAL GLOBE during the session - - - - - - - 3 00
For one copy of the APPENDIX during the session 3 00

The money may be remitted by mail at my risk. Bank notes current where a subscriber resides will be received at par. Subscriptions should reach here by the 13th December, at furthest, to insure all the numbers.

The prices for these papers are so low that I cannot afford to credit them out; therefore no person need order them unless the money accompanies the order.

The great beauty and superiority of this Sasaparilla over all other remedies is, while it eradicates disease, it invigorates the body.

IT HAS PERFORMED MORE THAN 15,000 CURES THIS YEAR

1,000 cures of Rheumatism.
1,000 cures of Dyspepsia.
2,500 cures of general debility and want of Nervous energy.

30,000 Female Complaints, and over 7,000 cures of Diseases of the blood viz:.

Ulcers, scrofula erysipelas salt rheum pimples on the face &c, together with numerous cases of consumption liver complaints spine affections, &c. This, we are aware, must appear incredible, but we have letters from physicians and our agents from all parts of the United States informing us of extraordinary cures. R Van, Buskirk Esq, one of the most respectable druggists in Newark, New Jersey, informs us that he can refer to more than one hundred and fifty cases in that place alone. There are thousands of cases in the city of New York which we will refer to with pleasure, and to men of character well known.

Opinions of Physicians.

Dr. Townsend is almost daily receiving orders from physicians in different parts of the Union.

This is to certify that we the undersigned physicians of the city of Albany have in numerous cases prescribed Dr. Townsend's Sarsaparilla and believe it to be one of the most valuable preparations Sarsaparilla in the Market

Albany, April 1 1845.

The following is from one of the most respectable physicians on Long Island,

Greenport July 19, 1846.

Dr. Townsend—Dear Sir—It is with satisfaction that I have recently witnessed in P Bcases the most beneficial results from your Extract of Sarsaparilla. Being engaged in the practice of medicine, I have prescribed it in several cases and never without benefit In the removal of diseases arrising from a deranged state of the digestive organs, jaundice &c, it far exceeds anything of the kind ever offered to the public. You will please send me two dozen &c,

Respectfully yours,
C. S Preston M D.

United States Officer.

Capt. G W McLean, member of the Legislature, and late of the U. S. Navy, has kindly sent us the following certificate. It tells its own story.

Rahway Jan. 25 1847.

A year since I was taken with the influenza and my whole system left in a debilitated state. I was induced to try Dr. Townsend's Sarsaparilla.

After taking two or three bottles, I was very much relieved, and attributed it entirely to the said Sarsaparilla. I have continued taking it, and improve every day I believe it saved my life, and would not be without it under any consideration.

G. W. McLEAN.

Scrofula Cured.

This certificate conclusively proves that the Sarsaparilla has perfect control over the most obstinate diseases of the blood. Three cases cured in one house is unprecedented.
